

Agglos 10 Poster Presentation Award

We would like to announce that the organizing committee of Agglos 10 will award outstanding poster presentations, namely, “Agglos10 Poster Presentation Award”. Guidelines of the award are as follows:

What is the award

A few outstanding poster presentations will be awarded. Judging criteria is as follows:

- Significance
- Originality
- Technical content
- Presentation skills
- Good answer to questions and comments

The winners will be announced at the banquet on Day 2.

Who is eligible to win

Students, post-doctoral researchers, and researchers in industries, who are younger than 35 years old, are eligible to win.

A faculty in university is not eligible to join the competition.

Who will judge

All members in the organizing committee and international scientific committee will judge. Each member will select candidates of winners based on the above criteria. The scientific secretariat will collect all voting ballots and announce the winners at the banquet on Day 2.

How to join the competition

If you are eligible and prefer to join to the competition for Agglos10 Poster Presentation Award, please email to Hideya Nakamura <hnakamura@chemeng.osakafu-u.ac.jp> by Fri 23 August 2013. Please note that you must send email to entry the competition even if you have already done registration.

If you have any question, please feel free to email <hnakamura@chemeng.osakafu-u.ac.jp> (Hideya Nakamura).

Through this competition, we hope that the poster presenters will be motivated so that the poster presentations will be more improved!

Sincerely,

Hideya Nakamura, PhD

Organizing committee member of Agglos 10 (Program coordinator)

Assistant Professor

Department of Chemical Engineering, Osaka Prefecture University